

Could you volunteer to be one of our Health Advisors?

About the organisation

Coeliac UK is the charity for people who need to live without gluten. We provide independent, trustworthy advice and support, strive for better gluten free food in more places and fund crucial research to manage the impacts of gluten and find answers to coeliac disease.

We have several exciting opportunities for healthcare professionals with expertise in coeliac disease and gluten related conditions to join our Health Advisory Network (HAN). As a member of Coeliac UK's HAN you will provide the Charity with expert insight into any health related issues, associated research and advice on relevant policies and activities. You can read more about our HAN on our website.

We are looking to recruit healthcare professionals across a range of specialities, including:

- Gastroenterologists and Paediatric gastroenterologists
- GPs
- Clinical Psychologists
- Dietitians and Paediatric dietitians
- Nurses

Other allied health professionals with an interest in coeliac disease are welcome to apply.

Role description

Membership of HAN includes representation from a range of professions including dietetics, general practice, paediatrics, gastroenterology and clinical psychology. This ensures that all aspects of healthcare and management including medical management (primary and secondary), dietary management, psycho-social understanding and health economics are covered.

HAN operates largely virtually and provides the charity with a broad network of healthcare professionals and researchers with an interest in coeliac disease who can provide intelligence and advice on health related issues.

Terms of appointment for HAN members will be for two years with the possibility of renewal depending on mutual agreement.

To Apply

Please apply by sending your CV and a cover letter to ruth.passmore@coeliac.org.uk

The terms of reference for the HAN can be found on our website.
